Here are a few things to keep in mind when choosing classes:

- Your major: Make sure to take classes that will count towards your major.
- Your interests: Take classes that you're passionate about. You'll be more likely to succeed in classes that you enjoy.
- Your goals: Consider what you want to do after college. Take classes that will help you reach your goals.

If you're not sure which classes to take, talk to your academic advisor. They can help you create a schedule that meets your needs.

One of the best ways to make the most of your junior year is to get involved in campus activities. There are a ton of different ways to get involved, from joining a club or organization to volunteering for a cause you care about.

Getting involved in campus activities can help you:

- Meet new people: You'll meet people from all different backgrounds and walks of life.
- Develop new skills: You'll learn new skills that will help you in your career.
- Make a difference: You'll make a positive impact on your community.

If you're not sure where to start, check out your school's website or talk to your resident advisor. They can help you find activities that match your interests.

Junior year is a great time to start looking for internships and scholarships. Internships can give you valuable experience in your field and help you make connections. Scholarships can help you pay for college.

Here are a few tips for finding internships and scholarships:

- Start early: The earlier you start looking, the more likely you are to find something that's a good fit for you.
- Use resources: There are a lot of resources available to help you find internships and scholarships. Talk to your career counselor, check out your school's website, and search online.
- Network: Talk to your friends, family, and professors. They may know of internships or scholarships that you're not aware of.

Don't be discouraged if you don't find an internship or scholarship right away. Keep looking and you'll eventually find something that's right for you.

Junior year is also a time to start thinking about your future after college. What do you want to do with your life? What kind of job do you want? Where do you want to live?

There are a lot of things to consider when thinking about your future. Here are a few things you can do to prepare:

- Explore your options: Talk to your professors, career counselor, and friends about your career options.
- Do some research: Learn about different careers and industries.

- Create a plan: Develop a plan for how you're going to reach your goals.

Don't be afraid to change your plans as you learn more about yourself and your options. The most important thing is to have a plan and to be proactive in pursuing your goals.

Junior year can be a challenging year, but it's also a year of great opportunity. By following the advice in this book, you can make the most of your junior year and set yourself up for success in the future.

Remember, you're not alone. College Quick and Dirty: Your Junior Year is here to help you every step of the way.
