The Preseason

The Bears began the 1985 season with high hopes. They had a talented roster, led by quarterback Jim McMahon, running back Walter Payton, and defensive end Richard Dent. However, the preseason did not go as smoothly as the Bears had hoped. They lost their first two games, and McMahon was injured in the second game. Despite the setbacks, the Bears remained confident. They knew they had a good team, and they were determined to prove it.

The Regular Season

The Bears started the regular season with a win over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. They then went on to win their next 14 games, including a 23-0 shutout of the Green Bay Packers. The Bears' only loss of the season came in Week 16, when they lost to the Miami Dolphins by a score of 38-24. Despite the loss, the Bears finished the season with a 15-1 record, the best record in the NFL. They also led the league in scoring, defense, and rushing.

The Playoffs

The Bears entered the playoffs as the top seed in the NFC. They defeated the New York Giants in the divisional round and the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC Championship Game. The Bears then faced the New England Patriots in Super Bowl XX. The Patriots were a tough opponent, but the Bears were too much for them. The Bears won the Super Bowl by a score of 46-10.

The Legacy of the 85 Bears

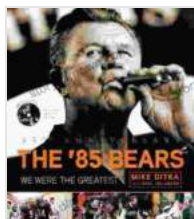

The 1985 Chicago Bears are considered one of the greatest teams in NFL history. They were a dominant team on both sides of the ball, and they played with a swagger that few teams have ever matched. The Bears' Super Bowl victory was a fitting end to a magical season.

The 85 Bears left a lasting legacy on the NFL. They helped to change the way the game was played, and they inspired a generation of young players. The Bears are still remembered today as one of the greatest teams in NFL history.
